PREFATORY REMARKS

This compilation of the health laws of Michigan is made in pursuance of joint resolution number eighteen, of the Session Laws of eighteen hundred and seventy-five, approved March 20, 1875, in the following words:

JOINT RESOLUTION for publishing in pamphlet form all laws relating to the Public Health.

WHEREAS, It is important that health officers, and persons who give immediate attention to sanitary science in this State, should have in a form convenient for reference, all the laws in force in this State relating to the public health;

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Michigan, That the Secretary of State, immediately after the final adjournment of this Legislature, be authorized and directed to compile and publish, in pamphlet form, all the laws of this State, then in force, relating to the public health; that he shall cause 3,000 copies of such pamphlet to be printed; that he shall send one copy to each health officer in this State, and that he shall place one thousand copies in the hands of the Secretary of the State Board of Health for the respect of the State Board of Health for the use of said board.

Although the resolution is sufficiently comprehensive in requiring the publication of "all laws relating to the public health," there was yet room for some doubt whether anything further was intended than the publication of laws or portions of laws coming within the administration of health boards. Some acts, however, not coming under this administration, were yet so exclusively in the interest of the public safety and health that they could not be excluded. Another class of acts, as, the inspection laws, have reference both to the public health and the convenience of commerce, and hence claimed recognition. Another class of acts, namely, those prescribing penalties for the commission of crimes against life and health, bear more or less directly upon the subject. There were, again, the beneficent laws, relating to hospitals, asylums, and public charities. Hence the compiler found himself at the outset confronted with the necessity of exercising a wide discretion. This discretion has been exercised in a liberal spirit toward the object of the work, and where provisions were found whose remoteness seemed to deny them space, they are recognized by references at the end of the work.

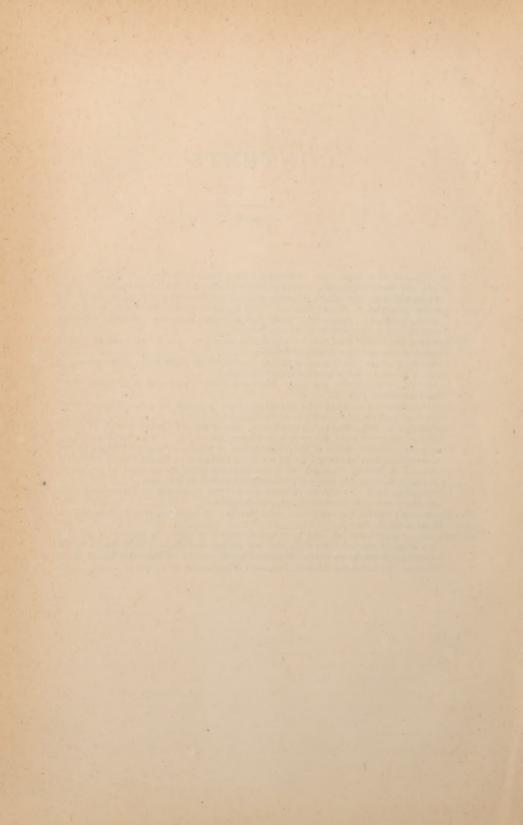

Aside from informing health officers more specifically as to their powers and duties, it is thought that the compilation may show wherein the health laws are deficient, and thereby suggest future legislation, and also that by bringing together the various provisions of law it may, by showing the care which legislation has taken to guard life and health, stimulate health boards to more systematic action, and aid them in securing the cooperation of other officers and persons on whom incidental duties are imposed, either directly or by implica-

The sections of this compilation are numbered consecutively by figures in parentheses at the beginning of each section. The section numbers following are those of the act or statute. The section numbers of the Compiled Laws, so far as the matter is found in the compilation of 1871, are indicated in parentheses at the end of each section.
